To the righte vvorshipfull Gentlewoman Mistres Susan Saltonstall, wife to the right worshipfull, M. Richarde Saltonstall, Alderman of the Citty of London.

IT beeing my chance (right Worshipfull) to lighten vpon certaine paternes of cutworks, and others brought out of forrein countries, which haue bin greatly accepted of by diuers Ladies and Gentlewomen of sundrie nations, and consequentlie of the common-people: this seemed vnto mee a sufficient instance and Argument, to bestowe likewise some paines for the publishing thereof. But beeing in suspence of the dedication: two causes induced me to imbolden my selfe to present it vnto your acceptation and patronage. First, because that rare deuises and inuentions are for the most part more agreeable and gratfuller accepted, then ordinarie and common thinges, although of great price and value. Secondlie, because these workes belong chiefly to Gentlewomen, for to passe away their time in vertuous exercises. Wherefore to fit and accommodate the dedication aright to the contentes and subiect of the booke, I thought it not amisse to offer it vnto your Worship, in token of thankfulnes for so many benefites which I haue receiued ſo bountifullie at your hands, aſſuring my ſelfe moreouer, that as theſe paterns will bring ſufficient contentment and profite to all welwillers that are deſirous of this art, ſo they ſhall for euer acknowledge thẽſelues to be beholden chiefly vnto you, being the chiefeſt occaſion of the publiſhing and ſetting forth thereof. And therefore vppon hope that you wil take theſe inuentions in good part, which in time I am purpoſed (if God permit) to increaſe and augment with more new paternes of workes: In the meane time I pray God giue to your Worſhip, a happie, proſperous, and a long life, with a full accompliſhment of all your vertuous deſires.

Your Worſhips moſt dutifull ſeruant and Kinſeman,

Adrian Poynt.

The Epiſtle to the Reader.

HAuing framed a body of the beſt & rareſt manner in true perfection, of ſundrie ſortes of deuiſes or workes, aſwell for frame workes, as other Needle workes: I deuiſed with all dilligence and induſtrious ſtudie to ſatiſfy the gentle mindes of vertuous women, by bringing to light thinges neuer before as yet ſeene, nor committed to print: All which deuiſes are ſo framed in due proportion, as taking thē in order, the one is formed or made by the other, & ſo proceedeth forward, whereby with more eaſe they may bee ſewed & wrought in cloth, and keping true accompt of the threads, maintaine the bewty of the worke. And more, who deſyreth to bring the worke into a leſſer lesser form, let them make the squares lesse, and if greater, then enlarge them, and so may you worke in diuers sortes either by stitch, pounting or pouldering vpon the same as you please. Also it is to be vnderstood, that these squares serue not onely for cut workes, but also for all other manner of sewing or stitching: noting withall, that they are made to keepe the worke or deuise in good order, and euen proportion. And if yee will that the squares be greater, make of two one, and of foure two, and so they will be larger: And in this manner may you proceed in all.

God prosper your desires.
